About Alpaga

Treasured by the ancient Inca civilisation, alpacas were important to the survival of the indigenous people of South America. They provided clothing, food, fuel and, no doubt, companionship as domesticated animals high in the Altiplano of Peru, Chile and Bolivia. The alpaca herds roamed across the Andes mountains. You could see them graze on the local vegetation, and were tightly controlled by Incan royalty. Alpacas are very social creatures, they are gentle and curious and can live in a wide range of habitats, from the high and dry Atacama Desert in northern Chile to the wet and stormy Tierra del Fuego at the southern tip of the continent. Alpacas are a pack animal and live in herds, and much like the animal, our Alpaga monospace font exists in much the same way. This font is available in a plethora of styles, 44 to be exact, from Extra Condensed Hairline to Ultra Expanded Extra Black. Designed in a classic monospace tradition with a contemporary and timeless approach, this font is a faithful design tool and companion that will accompany you on your artistic journey.

Hairline (10pt)

The first clash between two of boxing's most talented fighters was a study in adaptation. Opening as expected, the Welterweight Title unification bout saw the lankier Hearns keeping his shorter opponent at a distance while scoring with long jabs at will. A brilliant strategist, Leonard knew the fight could not continue this way, so he changed up his game plan and aggressively went after "The Hit Man." "Sugar" Ray's assertiveness carried him through the 6th and 7th rounds, but soon Hearns adapted himself, swinging the fight back in his favor by boxing instead of brawling. The fight looked to be going the "Motor City Cobra's" way until Leonard threw

Hairline (8pt)

Although it lasted for 12 thrilling rounds, this 1990 bout between Mexican hero Julio Cesar Chavez and Philadelphia prodigy Meldrick Taylor is remembered for two seconds. Fast-paced from the start, the bout was Taylor's early on as he avoided many of Chavez's blistering blasts and pulled ahead on points with his stick-and-move offense. Yet, towards the final rounds, the tough Mexican began to connect, punishing Taylor with endless shots. By most estimations, Taylor was winning on paper going into the 12th, but his corner convinced him otherwise, he attacked instead of avoiding the dangerous brawler - a miscalculation that led the fighter right into a flurry of brutal punches. Destroyed

The first round began with Barrera throwing combinations, leading with his trademark left hook to the body. Morales's lanky, tall frame providing a perfect target against which to test Marco's attack. Barrera is fierce, while Morales stands his ground, throwing back punishing combos, using his killer right hand to punctuate them. After the referee cautions Morales on a seemingly low blow towards the end of the round, Barrera refuses to touch gloves to Morales's apology.

Round two begins at a slightly slower pace, but soon picks it up. The combos start flowing from Barrera, while Morales deems it wise to counter Marco's violent onslaught by being even more violent himself. A particularly impressive combo from Barrera starts with the jab, followed by the right hand cross, and then the left hand uppercut that pushes upwards and backwards Morales's head. Barrera won rounds one and two clearly, since Morales is still struggling to match his opponent's level of intensity.

Great counterpunching by Barrera in round three; when Morales plunges in, he gets caught with Barrera's left hook to the body, which stops him temporarily in his tracks. However, when "El Terrible" reacts, he comes back even fiercer, throwing three punch combinations to the head, taking a step to the side, and doing it again.

All the while Barrera keeps his defense up and then goes on the attack himself. In round four, Morales lands a huge right hand on Barrera, and then falls victim to his own over-enthusiasm, as he loses balance while trying to land heavy shots, and hits the floor on a slip. Barrera quickly recovers.

There's a sense that Barrera's experience is carrying him through, while Morales is still trying to adapt to being on such a big stage with such a highly

Although it lasted for 12 thrilling rounds, this 1990 bout between Mexican hero Julio Cesar Chavez and Philadelphia prodigy Meldrick Taylor is remembered for two seconds. Fast-paced from the start, the bout was Taylor’s early on as he avoided many of Chavez’s blistering blasts and pulled ahead on points with his stick-and-move offense. Yet, towards the final rounds, the tough Mexican began to connect, punishing Taylor with endless shots. By most estimations, Taylor was winning on paper going into the 12th, but his corner convinced him otherwise, he attacked instead of avoiding the dangerous brawler – a miscalculation that led the fighter right into a flurry of brutal punches. The first round began with Barrera throwing combinations, leading with his trademark left hook to the body. Morales’s lanky, tall frame providing a perfect target against which to test Marco’s attack. Barrera is fierce, while Morales stands his ground, throwing back punishing combos, using his killer right hand to punctuate them. After the referee cautions Morales on a seemingly low blow towards the end of the round, Barrera refuses to touch gloves to Morales’s apology.

Round two begins at a slightly slower pace, but soon picks it up. The combos start flowing from Barrera, while Morales

deems it wise to counter Marco’s violent onslaught by being even more violent himself. A particularly impressive combo from Barrera starts with the jab, followed by the right hand cross, and then the left hand uppercut that pushes upwards and backwards Morales’s head. Barrera won rounds one and two clearly, since Morales is still struggling to match his opponent’s level of intensity.

Great counterpunching by Barrera in round three; when Morales plunges in, he gets caught with Barrera’s left hook to the body, which stops him temporarily in his tracks. However, when “El Terrible” reacts, he comes back even fiercer, throwing three punch combinations to the head, taking a step to the side, and doing it again.

All the while Barrera keeps his defense up and then goes on the attack himself. In round four, Morales lands a huge right hand on Barrera, and then falls victim to his own over-enthusiasm, as he loses balance while trying to land heavy shots, and hits the floor on a slip. Barrera quickly recovers.

There’s a sense that Barrera’s experience is carrying him through, while Morales is still trying to adapt to being on such a big stage with such a highly
